NOTES ON CONTRIBUTORS

Ahmed M. Sheir earned his PhD in History from Philipps-Universität Marburg in 2021. Following his doctoral studies, he was a Fritz Thyssen Fellow at the Islamic Studies Department, Center for Near and Middle Eastern Studies, Philipps-Universität Marburg, where he pursued postdoctoral research. He later joined the ERC-funded APCG project at Trinity College Dublin, in collaboration with Cambridge University, as a research fellow. He is currently a Visiting Research Fellow at the Near and Middle Eastern Studies Department, Trinity College Dublin, and a permanent Affiliated Assistant Professor (on leave) at the Faculty of Arts, Damanhour University, Egypt. Additionally, he is an Affiliated Fellow at Philipps-Universität Marburg. Sheir's recent publications include The Prester John Legend between East and West (Trivent Publishing, 2022). He has co-edited two volumes: Studies in Peace-Building History between East and West through the Middle Ages and Modern Era (Cairo, 2019) and a special issue, "The Entangled Histories and Cultures of Jews, Christians, and Muslims in the Premodern Mediterranean" (Entangled Religions, Vol. 15:3). In addition, he has published several articles on the Crusades, Jewish-Muslim relations, and the Cairo Genizah.

Mohamed Mones Awad is an Egyptian historian and university professor, born in Asyut in 1956. He earned his PhD in 1988 from Ain Shams University, specializing in the history of the Crusades. He is the founder of the Seminar on East-West Relations and has published extensively on the Crusades and Islamic civilization. In addition to his historical research, he has contributed significantly to bibliographical studies, with three major works on the subject. His scholarship also includes several studies on Saladin, as well as numerous articles in both Arabic and English. In recognition of his contributions to the field, his colleagues and students have dedicated two festschrift volumes in his honor. In 2020, he was awarded the Shawamekh al-Mu'arrikhīn Medal by the Union of Arab Historians in Cairo. He currently serves as a Professor of History at the College of Arts, University of Sharjah. Among his most notable works is the Dictionary of Figures from the Age of the Crusades between East and West (2015), a pioneering study.

Mohamed Fawzi Raheel is an Associate Professor of Islamic History at Matrouh University, Egypt. He earned his Ph.D. in Islamic History from Ain Shams University in 2008, following an M.A. in 2003 and a B.A. in History from Menofia University in 1997. His research focuses on Islamic and medieval history, with a particular emphasis on the Crusades, medieval Islamic governance, and East-West relations. His major publications include Qawānīn al-Faranja Ghuzāt Bayt al-Maqdis (Canons of the Franks, the Invaders of the Country of Jerusalem, Cairo, 2024), Nihāyat al-Ṣalībīyīn: Fath ʿAkkā (The End of the Crusaders: The Fall of Acre, 2009), Imārat Banī Mazīd: Umaraʾ al-Ḥillah (The Banu Mazid Emirate: Rulers of Hillah, 2003), and Al-Ribāṭ al-Muqaddas: A Brief History of the Military Orders During the Crusades (2019). Raheel has also published numerous articles exploring Islamic representation in medieval European sources, war horse insurance laws in the Crusader Kingdom of Jerusalem, and medieval pilgrimage accounts. His work contributes significantly to the study of Islamic historiography and cross-cultural interactions in the medieval Mediterranean.

Amro Abdelaziz Mounir obtained his PhD in Medieval History from Zagazig University, Egypt, in 2007. He is currently an Associate Professor at North Valley University, Egypt, specialising in the relationship between history and folklore. He is a member of the Cultural Heritage and Intangible Cultural Heritage Committee at the Supreme Council of Culture in Cairo and previously served as Professor of Medieval History and Civilization at Umm Al-Qura University. His research focuses on manuscript studies, Mamluk history, Jewish-Christian-Muslim relations, Mediterranean history, travel literature, and Arabic popular literature, particularly the critical edition of Arabic folk epics. He has produced critical editions of major historical and folkloric texts, including A New Edition of Ibn Daniyal's Taif al-Khayal (Brill, 2024), Coptic Folk Tales from Ottoman Egypt (Brill, 2024), The Epic of Sayf ibn Dhi Yazan (Cairo, 2022), The Epic of Faris al-Iraq (Cairo, 2022), The Oldest Mauritanian Pilgrimage Account to the Holy Lands (Brill, 2021), and The Popular Biography of the Caliph al-Hakim bi-Amr Allah (in progress). He has received multiple awards, including the ALECSO Award for Creativity in Heritage and Historical Studies (2014) and the Ibn Battuta International Award for Travel Literature (2009). His contributions have significantly shaped the study of Arabic historiography, folklore, and manuscript traditions.

Amar S. Baadj obtained his PhD from the Department of Near and Middle Eastern Studies at the University of Toronto in 2012. He has worked at the University of Toronto, Bonn University, and Trier University, and is currently employed at Relizane University. He has written Saladin, the Almohads and the Banū Ghāniya: The Contest for North Africa (12th and 13th centuries) published by Brill in 2015 and edited A Handbook of Modern Arabic Historical Scholarship on the Ancient and Medieval Periods which was published by Brill in the series Handbook of Oriental Studies in 2021.

Oleg Sokolov is an associate professor at the Department of Arabic Philology, Faculty of Asian and African Studies, St. Petersburg State University, where he teaches Arabic and courses on the Crusades and Islamic history. His research interests include the images of the Other in the Medieval Middle East, memory of the Crusades and Christian-Muslim relations in the Mediterranean. He obtained his B.A. and M.A. in Arabic philology and his PhD in history at St. Petersburg State University.

Fadi Ragheb is a historian of the medieval Islamic world during the Age of the Crusades. He completed his MA and PhD in Islamic History at the University of Toronto, where he also served as an Assistant Professor, Teaching Stream (CLTA), teaching courses on Arabic and Islamic history. He is the recipient of international, federal, provincial, and university awards and scholarships, including, most recently, the Ibrahim Dakkak Award for Outstanding Essay on Jerusalem. He has published articles and book chapters on Islamic pilgrimage to Jerusalem, shared sacred spaces in the Holy Land, and the memory of Saladin and the Crusades in Islamic history. His doctoral thesis, titled "The History of Islamic Pilgrimage to Mamlūk Jerusalem During the Later Age of the Crusades (648-922 A.H./1250-1517 C.E.)," which he is currently preparing as a monograph for publication, examines the Faḍāʾil al-Quds texts, the network of Islamic holy sites, and the impact of the Crusades on Islamic pilgrimage to late medieval Bayt al-Maqdis. He is also a co-editor of a forthcoming volume of essays titled From Egypt to Jerusalem and Beyond: Studies of the Later Islamic Middle Period in Honor of Linda Stevens Northrup, which will be published in Brill's Islamic History and Civilization Series.